Flor Amargo is more than just music, colors, shapes, laughs, dancing, singing, everything as a whole describes her. Emma Mayte Carballo Hernández, better known as Flor Amargo, was born in the State of Mexico, at age 6 she began studying piano thanks to her mother, but it is until she was 12 that she made her first song called "La Vida Loca". She studied classical piano at the National Conservatory of Music and psychology at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, taking several workshops focusing on interior healing, she's been teaching music therapy classes for all ages for over 15 years.

She is a former participant of La Voz México, first season. Flor, is a Mexican singer, pianist and multi-instrumentalist. Her proposal involves genres such as katartic pop, a genre she calls without gender, since it involves all sounds and rhythms from pop, cumbia, melodies to classical piano or folk music.

In 2004, she started giving concerts all around Mexico, alongside artists like Rubén Albarrán (Cafe Tacuba), Paquita la del Barrio, Ana Bárbara, Eugenia León, Mon Laferte, Ramon Ayala, Alejandro Sanz, Carlos Vives, Sonora Santanera, Sonora Dinamita y Lila Downs.

Her songs have been featured in the soundtrack of the popular Netflix series “La Casa de las Flores” and her career in social media has captured the attention of international press due to the popularity of her Facebook channel.

In 2010 he released his first album "Carrusel" with OCESA-Seitrack and now, independently, he is promoting his second album "Cristal Mirror" which is sold only by digital platforms.
